

DWP-

our 20 minute conversation ended 25 minutes ago -- in the intervening 25 minutes between the end of our call and the present -- I retrieved from my library,
and enclose herewith,
E.N.T. Vane's Guide to Lovebirds and Parakeets, published in 1958, which was probably when I bought the book.
I have read just now Chapter 3 and 11, as I am sure you will do today. I am green with envy -- my first impulse, of course, is to rush out and purchase some cage birds. The two "drawbacks" of ^{the} peach-faced lovebird, according to Vane (p. 93), are "its penetrating high-pitched grating call and its spiteful nature."
Can not these two attributes be regarded as virtues/assets and not vices/libilities? It appears that peach-faced lovebirds are wonderfully easy to breed in captivity, and it sounds like you are well
on their way to setting up/establishing a household.
Would you have fun supplying them with the straw and twigs that they require for their nest?

Well, I won't keep you from ^{your avicultural pursuits & from} E.N.T. Vane.
Have any names suggested themselves yet for
the peach-faced lovebirds?

Regards --
Robert

"How To Observe Thanksgiving"
Count your blessings - instead of your crosses;
Count your gains - instead of your losses.
Count your joys instead of your foes
Count your smiles instead of your tears;
Count your courage instead of your fears;
Count your full years instead of your lean;
Count your kind deeds instead of your mean.
Count your health instead of your wealth
Count on God instead of yourself.
